I am very much in support of Local Number Portability. I could use my home number if I so choose, and I could change providers for my mobile service so I don't loose my number. This is especially good when the level of service with my mobile provider is less than expected. It would keep competition running strong.